MAN ABUSED HER

Miss Bertha Waalheiser Beaten John McCue Had a Struggle with and Dragged Through Streets by Man Dressed in Uniform

and Brass Buttons

Bertha Waalheiser, a pretty girl nineteen, was practically carried into Magistrate Smith's police court in Long Island City to-day to make a charge of Elmhurst railroad crossing last night. Her face was covered with bruises and scratches, and part of her coil of brown hair had seen torn from her head According to her story early last evening she went to the home of her brother, Louis Seawood, First street and Riker The local cotton market opened quiet avenue, Elmhurst, to develop some and steady to-day with prices 2 points photographs. She stayed late and left run away, whereupon the man seized her by the throat and choked her into unconsciousness. Then he started to drag her by the hair toward the railroad tracks. As she was being hauled along she recovered consciousness and struggled to free herself. She seized the pickets of a fence by the roadside, and in her frantic efforts pulled off several. Some of her hair became entangled in the fence and was torn from her head. The statement was verified by a policeman who later came to her rescue. While she struggled she screamed and attracted the attention of several switchmen in the tower at the rai-road crossing, but when they arrived, accom-panied by a policeman, her assailant had

(Special to The Evening World.)
FREEHOLD, N. J., Sept. 22.—Relatives of John McCue, who died yesterday afternoon, were in Freehold to-day investigating the cause of his death. I hands of a uniformed stranger at the was ascertained that McCue had fallen Bros.' cigar store ten days ago, after having, as charged, been ejected because he refused to pay for a cigar that he had picked up from the counter McCue was the father of a wealthy livery proprietor, Charles McCue, o Lakewood and Seabright, and presiden of the Seabright Bank, who furnished ball for Bernard Smith, who was jointly indicted with David Lamar, "Monk Eastman. Joseph Brown and others or > McMahon, the coachman. The elder McCue was a farmer and lived a few miles from Freehold. On the day he received the injuries that resulted in his death, he, so the police are informed, took a cigar that had been laid out with a handful for an-other patron to select from, and when William Vanderveer asked him to pay for it he refused, and Vanderveer took the cigar from his mouth and ordered him to leave the store.

Then McCue, it is said, defied Vandergoor, but McCue was rebellious and struggied to free himself from Vander-veer, tinally succeeding in the effort and failing backward on the flagstones. Vanderveer called for assistance, and got McCue in a sitting posture, and when his wife arrived in her carriage he was lifted to a place beside her. He had been unconscious most of the time since the accident.
